MANAGEMENT COMMENT

TACTICAL MANAGEMENT COMMENT

The month was marked by a rise in risky assets, a fall in sovereign yields and significant movements in currencies. Risk appetite was buoyed by an easing of trade tensions between the US and China and by good earnings reports. In Japan, the election of Sanae Takaichi as leader of the Liberal Democratic Party and prime minister led to a sharp rise in Japanese equities and a fall in the yen. The Topix gained +6,2%, compared with +4,2% for the MSCI Emerging Markets and +2,3% for the S&P 500 and the Euro Stoxx. In European bond markets, the ICE BofA Eurozone government bond index gained +0,7%. In the United Kingdom, the more accommodative tone of the governor of the Bank of England contributed to a sharp drop in government bond yields, leading to a tightening of the spread with Germany (-29bp for the UK 10-year yield versus -8bp for the German equivalent). The iBoxx indices posted positive performances: +0,7% for investment grade bonds, +0,6% for subordinated financials and +0,1% for high yield bonds. In terms of currencies, the euro appreciated by +2,4% against the yen and fell by -1,7% against the dollar.

The fund suffered from its underexposure to equities and benefited from positive US modified duration (29bp fall in the US 10-year yield).

Taking advantage of the good performance of Japanese equities, we took profits by reducing their weighting by 1,6%. In return, we increased our exposure to European equities. We reduced our positions in European equities by -0,5% as part of the monthly rebalancing (CAC at 8121).

BOND MANAGEMENT COMMENT

October was another strong month for markets, with financial assets supported by the US-China trade truce, strong economic data and decent earnings releases. This offset concerns about private credit and fears of a potential AI-related bubble. In the United States, the Federal Reserve announced a 25bp rate cut, widely expected by the market. The target range for Fed Funds is [3,75% - 4,00%]. Jerome Powell stated that another rate cut in December was far from certain, which weighed on Treasuries. The FOMC also announced that the balance sheet reduction process, which began more than three years ago, will end in early December. US yields fell over the month, with the 2-year down 4bp to 3.57% and the 10-year down 7bp to 4,08%. 2-year inflation expectations remained stable at around 2,74-2,85%, while 10-year inflation expectations were around 2,50%, against a backdrop of oil price volatility. In the Eurozone, the ECB kept its rates unchanged (deposit rate at 2,00%). The statement changed little, with Christine Lagarde reiterating that monetary policy was well positioned. The next meeting is in December, with updates on economic forecasts. German yields also fell, with the 2-year yield down -5bp to 1,97% and the 10-year yield down -8bp to 2,63. Sovereign spreads remained stable overall, despite occasional tensions. The OAT-Bund spread widened to 87bp against a backdrop of political instability in France before returning to around 83bp. The Italian spread remained under control thanks to a reassuring budget. PMIs point to a slight rebound in manufacturing and services, and inflation remained moderate at 2,2% in September, while the unemployment rate reached 6,3%.

On the credit side, credit spreads tightened slightly over the month, except for HY credit: -3bp for IG credit, -2bp for Tier 2 financial bonds, -4bp for IG corporate hybrids, -1 bp for AT1 financial bonds and +8 bp for HY corporate credit. Most sectors ended the month with tighter spreads. The retail, healthcare and automotive sectors outperformed over the month, while real estate underperformed. Asset class performances were positive, mainly driven by the interest rate effect and carry: +0,69% for IG credit, +0,60% for Tier 2 financial bonds, +0,76% for IG hybrids, 0,67% for AT1 financials (€) and 0,12% for HY corporate bonds. Euro IG primary activity slowed naturally in October, with a total volume of €47bn. Corporate supply (€25bn) slightly exceeded that of financials (€22bn). Demand remained robust. Lastly, the third quarter earnings season has begun, confirming at this stage the momentum of the European banking sector and the resilience of companies, albeit with some variation.

The structure of the bond portfolio changed marginally against a backdrop of falling rates and stable credit spreads.

SRI INTERNATIONAL EQUITY MANAGEMENT COMMENT

In October, the SRI international equities compartment gained 4,15%, outperforming its benchmark index, the MSCI World, by 31bp.

This outperformance was mainly due to the very good performances of Hitachi (+32,4%), EssilorLuxottica (+15%; better-than-expected earnings, driven in particular by sales of smart glasses), Murata (+17,8%) and LVMH (+17,6%; also better-than-expected earnings). The absence of Meta (-9,9%; despite solid results, the market is worried about a further rise in CapEx) also contributed positively to relative performance.

Conversely, the fund was hurt by the poor performances of BNP (-13,3%; following the recognition by a US jury of its complicity in abuses in Sudan), Motorola Solutions (-9,3%; mixed results, with concerns over the growth of Land Mobile Radio products), Intercontinental Exchange (-11,4%) and Linde (-10,2%).
