Gavekal Asian Opportunities UCITS Fund

UCITS V Compliant Fund – Long Only Equity Strategy

Morningstar Rating™
★★★★★ EUR A Class

Data updated as of 31st August 2026

Product Summary

The Gavekal Asian Opportunities UCITS Fund ("GAOUF") seeks to capture the long-term returns of Asian equity markets by investing in a diversified portfolio of equities, especially large cap growth stocks, across the Asia-Pacific region. The fund's objective is to outperform the MSCI AC (All Country) Pacific Index. In occasional circumstances, the fund may temporarily reduce equity exposure in favor of cash or Asian bonds to dampen short-term volatility.

The fund is a long-only, diversified, Euro-denominated equity fund investing primarily in large cap growth equities across the greater Asia-Pacific region (including Japan, Australia and India). The fund is UCITS V compliant and classified as an Article 8 fund under SFDR.

The fund follows a growth equity approach, identifying top-down macro themes as a foundation for building a concentrated yet diversified equity portfolio. Stock selection focuses on companies that are substantially mispriced relative to their growth earnings and price momentum. Idea generation is driven by fund managers and analysts using proprietary screening tools, top-down expertise, bottom-up assessments, and input from corporates, industry contacts, governments and sell-side research. The portfolio combines high conviction positions with broad diversification within a controlled risk framework.

This Fund is intended for investors with a high-risk tolerance, a long-term investment horizon, and the ability to bear potential capital losses. It is not suitable for investors seeking capital protection or short-term returns.

What Makes the Product Unique

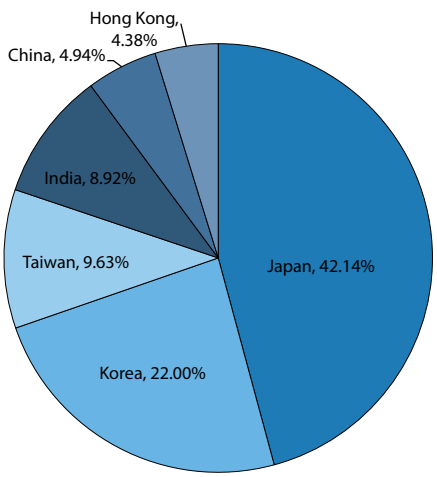

Investing in Asia presents two major challenges for foreign investors: greater individual company risk and abrupt changes in policies by governments whose processes are very different from those that prevail in Western democracies. As a result, country risk tends to be a primary driver of return.

Against this landscape, we believe that two strategies fundamentally make sense for investors aiming to deliver better risk-adjusted returns than equity benchmarks: a) a value, bottom-up driven strategy or b) a strategy which aims to identify where in Asia bull markets are the most likely to unfold, and then overweight the more aggressive, higher-beta growth stocks in those countries. This identification of bull markets relies on individual country indicators built around valuations, levels of economic activity and overall excess liquidity.

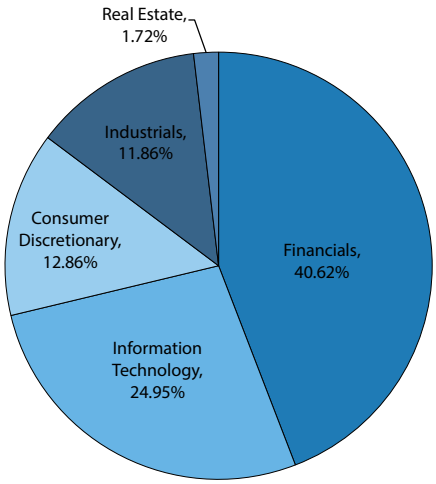

The Gavekal Asian Opportunities UCITS Fund follows the latter approach. While the fund's natural posture is to be fully invested in equities, the portfolio managers retain the discretion to temporarily shift a portion of assets into cash or Asian fixed income during periods of acute market stress, providing an additional layer of downside protection.
