IFP Global Age Fund

Class EUR - July 31, 2020

Fund Strategy

The IFP Global Age Fund invests in companies that will benefit from an aging world population. The fund is mainly invested in global equities both from cyclical and non-cyclical sectors, with a focus on healthcare, financial services and consumer sectors. The sustainable investment process is based on fundamental analysis, combining financial and non-financial criteria. Proprietary ESG analysis as well as SDG impact are completely integrated in the management process. The master class is denominated in EUR and not hedged. Objective is a medium to long term outperformance of the global equity markets (MSCI World in EUR). Its target risk is set to 'high' with a middle to long term investment horizon.

Fund Managers Comment

The IFP Global Age Fund was nicely up in July, as the earning season brought positive triggers for the market as well as the fund. Most holdings that reported so far beat market expectations. Best performing sector in the fund was Consumer Discretionary and Healthcare, whereas Financials and Consumer Staples were down. Best performing holding was Getinge (Swedish HC). The company outperformed strongly on sales, earnings as well as new orders, and management is confident about the potential to lift margins further. Within the fund we increased our exposure to ABB (Swiss automation), while we took profit and reduced Orpea (F, nursing homes) as well as Novo Nordisk (DK pharma) back to target weight. We exited Alcon (Swiss eye care) as we see better momentum and higher transparency elsewhere. As the world is preparing for a second wave of Covid-19 infections we keep our focus on business that will hold up well.
